ROBIN FLIERS NEAR TO 300 HOURS IN AIR

Intrepid St. Louis Aviators Start On Their Thirteenth Day Aloft.

LAMBERT FIELD, ST LOUIS, July 25—With that buccaneering disregard for records and precedent which has characterized the St. Louis Robin's epochal endurance flight, two adventursome pilots, Dale "Red" Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, gayly defied an old established jinx by flying serenely into their thirteenth day in the air at 7:17 this morning

At this time the flying air castle had been among the clouds for 288 hours and its whirring propellor blades were sounding a monotinous challenge to that 300 hour goal which a few weeks ago had seemed farther away from aviation attainment than the big golden harvest moon which has lighted the flyers' long night in the air.

EVERYTHING FINE

The St. Louis Robin has now added more than 41 hours to the former world record for sustained flying set by the Angelona and no one is willing to predict when the plane will come down.

"Everything going fine" was the latest message from the trail blazers of the sky. "We will stay up as long as there is any run left in this motor."

That this attitude is pleasing to the sponsors of the flight is evident from the statement of Major William B. Robertson, head of the company conducting the flight. "It is the b ys' wish to set a new endurance record," he said, "and we have no intention of stopping them."

FLYING HIGHER

To make their flight an altitude height than during the first week in the air. The pilots explained in notes that the motor functioned more smoothly at a height of 3000 feet and by flying high the pilots were safeguarding their record record hoht record, the plane must land at the same field from which it took off. In case the engine develops sudden trouble, making necessary a forced landing, the St. Louis Robin can glide to the field.

TEXANS STILL ALOFT

HOUSTON, TEXAS, July 25 —(INS)— The monoplane "Billion Dollar City," was soaring in the clouds above the Houston airport at 7:49:30 a. m. today, completing its 186th hour in the air. As the pilots, Joe Glass and G. L. Loomis, entered into the eighth day of their attempt to set a new refueling endurance record. Houston business men, headed by Ray Fogle, started a subscription list for the flyers in the event they set a new record.

GOODYEAR AIRSHIP PASSES OVER CITY

"What is that noise?" was the question asked by many people of Circleville Thursday morning when they heard the motor humming on the Goodyear Blimp, Puritan, as it sailed over Circleabout 7:30 o' lock. This was the first time that such a noise had been heard and before it had gotten very far the necks of every person was stretched skyward. Sailing apparently with its nose headed westward, but going due north seemed strange to those who had their first glimpse of a blimp, but this was undoubtedly due to the fact that the crew wanted the people to get a good view of their ship. Soon after passing over town it straightened out and headed north.

W. H Nelson, local Goodyear dealer, informed The Herald that the Goodyear Co have eight of these blimps touring the country helping advertise the Zeppelin Race sale of Goodyear tires and is also using them as training ships for the future pilots of the larger Zeppelins that will eventually be used for transportation in this country.

DOUBT HOOVER RIGHT TO HALT NAVY BUILDING

Congressional Leaders Say President Without Power To Stop Work.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The question of President Hoover's legal authority to suspend the building of three cruisers in the $274,000,000 building program authorized by congress last year was raised today in the wave of his announcement that he would meet Great Britain's reduction of her warship program with a like act.

Congress, it was pointed out, had specifically rejected the request of President Coolidge to be given the authority to suspend the building of cruisers at any time

Instead, congress provided that the program could be held up only after the leading naval powers had signed a limitation agreement. The cruiser act, which was approved by President Coolidge February 13, 1929, provided:

POWER BASED ON PACT

"In the event of an International agreement which the President is requested to encourage, for the further limitation of naval armament to which the United States is signatory, the president is authorized and empowered to suspend in whole or in part any of the naval construction authorized under this act."

Mr. Hoover by his brief announcement, it is pointed out, wiped out the fruits of a three-year fight in congress by the "big navy" bloc to bring American cruisers strength more nearly up to a level with Great Britain.

Although members of the "big navy" bloc are scattered far and wide today, past declarations of backers of the cruiser building program makes certain that Mr. Hoover's action will arouse a fight in congress.

FIGHT FORECAST

Rep Britten (R) of Illinois, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, who is about to sail for Europe, recalled the victory of the committee over Mr. Coolidge in refusing to permit suspension of the cruiser program without a definit International agreement.

In answer to Mr. Hoover's economy drive on the army and navy, Britten asserted that he would fight reduction in the navy until parity is achieved with Great Britain. Although Premier MacDonald announced that Great Britain accepts the principle of parity, the United States would still be below British cruiser strength if the 15-cruiser program is completed, according to naval authorities.

Under the cruiser law, the secretary of the navy is directed to submit estimates to congress in the fiscal years 1929, 1930 and 1931 for their building. This action, it is held, will have to be taken regardless of the president's act, thus bringing the cruiser question before congress.

Documents Showing Plans of Revolution Seized In Communist Raid.

TOKIO, July 25— (INS)— Warlike demonstrations again flared on the Manchurian border today, according to reports received here.

According to police, Moscow has subsided the French communist party to aid in provoking a world war "which would eventually be transformed into civil war in France" when the Reds would attempt to seize power in France.

The French Communists had planned a demonstration here on August 1, but there is every indication that it cannot be held, owing to the swift and drastic action of the police and the arrest of a number of red leaders.

These leaders are accused of accepting orders from Moscow and of receiving funds from the Communists International organization to further plans for red disorders in this city.

FIVE WOMEN, SEVEN MEN ARE PLACED IN JURY BOX; QUIZZED ABOUT DRUGS, SEX KNOWLEDGE

Reaction of "Dope" on Human Emotions Stressed by Defense Attorneys in Questioning of Prospective Peers of Confessed Slayer—Lawyers Suggest Victim Gave Opiates to Deposed O. S. U. Professor

(By JAMES L. KILGALLEN)
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

COURT ROOM, COLUMBUS, O., July 25.—Sex subjects and "experiments with drugs to determine the human reaction," will be delved into at the trial of Dr. James H. Snook, 49-year-old college professor, for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, 25-year-old co-ed, it was indicated in court today.

In questioning Elliott P. Rexford, the eighth juror to be tentatively accepted for the jury, defense Attorney John F. Seidel said:

"Would the fact that Dr. Snook and Miss Hix had experimented with doses of drugs by administering them to see the human re-action influence you for or against this defendant?"

"No," replied Rexford, who is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

SEX SUBJECTS TO BE AIRED

Sex subjects and the intimate relations between Dr. Snook and his co-ed paramour will also be aired, Attorney Seidel further indicated.

"If it develops," said Seidel, "that the question of sex and the subject of illicit relations are delved into, would the fact that this is a mixed jury of men and women cause you any embarrassment or prevent you discussing the case fully in the jury room?"

"No, it would not," Rexford replied.

Seidel intimated that it would be shown Dr. Snook and Miss Hix were intimate on the night of the crime.

The spectators laughed when Rexford, asked what part of the newspapers he reads, said:

"The funny pictures and the headlines."

SNOOK GIVEN DRUGS?

Attorney Seidel further indicated that it would be contended Miss Hix administered drugs to Snook "on the night of the crime."

In questioning Louis C. Davis, the ninth juror tentatively accepted, Seidel said:

"Would you be prejudiced against this defendant if it were shown they took drugs together and that she administered drugs to him on the night of the crime?"

"I would not," Davis replied.

Mrs. Albert Brooks, a housewife, was the tenth juror tentatively selected. When she took her seat in the jury box, the forces were divided equally, five women and five men.

Eleven jurors had been tentatively selected when court adjourned until 1:30 this afternoon. The eleventh juror selected at noon, was F. G Mills, a steel worker. He was the 26th talesman questioned.

TWELFTH JUROR SEATED

The twelfth juror was tentatively accepted late this afternoon He is Harold E Brown, a local shoe worker.

Before the state and defense began exercising peremptory challenges, Defense Attorney Seidel, questoined juror number one, Miss Edith Dysinger, who is a nurse.

"As a nurse have you any knowledge of opiates" asked Seidel.

"Yes" she replied.

"Are you familiar with the use of aphoriasiacs or drugs to stimulate sexual desire?" Seidel asked.

"No."

"Do you know anything about thyroid tablets?"

"I have experience with them in medical doses but not in over doses."

"Have you had any experience with cocaine?"

"Yes, in medical doses and in over doses."

Attorney Seidel asked if she had experience with cocaine given as "snow," hypodermics and internally in the stomach.

She replied in the affirmative.

POPE ENTERS VATICAN CITY

Historic Exit From St. Peter's Church Made By Pontiff Thursday.

VATICAN CITY, July 25— The Catholic popes were "liberated" this evening from their long, self imposed captivity in the vatican when Pope Pius XI made his historic exit from St. Peter's church into St. Peter's Square, in the presence of more than a quarter of a million spectators.

It was an imposing spectacle when the pontiff was borne from the vatican church kneeling upon his podium beneath a canopy of silk. The solemnity of this scene, breaking a church precedent of nearly 60 years duration, held the mighty host of men and women spectators, drawn here from the ends of the earth, spellbound during the hour's pageantry that preceded a brief religious service at an improvised altar upon the steps of St. Peter's church.

Standing bareheaded at this temporary shrine beneath the slanting rays of the setting sun, which glinted upon the purple and crimson robes of the prelates and the brilliant uniforms of the state and papal troops, the pontiff extended his blessing to the eternal city and the entire world.

Despite a scorching sun, a crowd estimated at more than 200,000 souls had gathered in St. Peter's square, Piazza Rusticucci and their environs by 5 o'clock.

Parents Of Theora Have Dramatic Spotlight At Snook Trial

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, O., July 25 The dramatic highlight of the Snook murder trial so far is provided NOT by the defendant himself but by an elderly, silver haired couple in the twilight of life—Mr and Mrs Melvin T Hix

Again today they sat side by side in a crowded courtroom listening to the tedious task of jury selection and hearing lawyers say things about the daughter they idolized that must be like knife thrusts to the heart

By nightfall the jury probably will have been selected to try Dr. James H. Snook, a college professor of "the dangerous age" for the sensational slaying of Miss Theora Hix, beautiful Ohio State co-ed Seven jurors—four women and three men had been tentatively accepted when court was called to order this morning

But strangely enough, as this unusual trial with its 'college background" unfolds itself it is NOT Snook the smug looking defendant, who is drawing the attention of the spectators who by the way, are mostly young girls possibly some of them co-eds themselves It is the old couple They are tugging at the heart strings of all

There Mr and Mrs. Hix sit, in the front row just outside the prisoners dock 20 paces from Snook the man who caused the cataclysm to break over the quiet cycle of their declining years

His glares at Snook but Snook does not seem to notice him Mrs Hix sits with bowed head tears in her drooping eyes

James Hix himself a retired high school principal of New York City almost leans from his chair when one of the attorneys mentions a name that his daughter and Dr Snook during the course of their "affair" used drugs His Theora!

Theora! What an unusual name Mr Hix, in a quivering voice will explain to you the meaning of "Theora" He gave his child that name himself That was 25 years ago when he was teaching Greek and Latin He wanted to give his baby a name that would be distinctly individual So he chose Theora which in Greek means God-given"

Ah this couldn't be his girl that they are talking about this way They had reared their child so carefully sent her through high school to a seminary and finally to Ohio State where they felt sure she would be free from temptation and where she could obtain the medical education she cherished.

The Hixes deplore all the publicity their dead daughter is receiving But what can they do? Here they are people who never had their names in the papers before pushed smack into the limelight their pictures in all the papers and the past of their child dug up and revealed in its most sordid details through the medium of a murder trial

For no murder case in the history of this enterprising college town has ever caused such a sensation A battery of 33 correspondents sit at three long press tables sending out to the world all essential details of the case

The state of Ohio has four prosecutors engaged in the task of seeing to it that justice is done Three attorneys the best obtainable have been employed in the defense of Snook The town is on its ears so to speak, and over at the University reverberations can be heard The Snook case is the scandal of years.

How the Hixes wish they had never allowed their daughter out of their sight—to leave home in the quest of higher education! Over and over again they ask themselves the question 'Could it be possible, as careful as we were that we failed somehow in rearing our child" Or was fate willingly unkind to us in our declining years?"

SPEEDBOAT BEATS RECORD OF PACKET

ST LOUIS, July 25.—"One of Ol' man river's most cherished records fell before the sweep of modern mechanical progress today when a bearded man docked his trim mahogany speedboat, "The Bogie" at the St Louis levee three hours and one minute ahead of the record in race from New Orleans to St Louis set in 1870 by the famous packet "Robert E Lee

Dr Leroy's time for the turbulent trip up the river was 87 hours and 30 minutes. The record set 59 years ago by the "Robert E Lee" is generally accepted as 90 hours and 31 minutes.

The body of the father was found near the automobile, indicating he died while making a frantic effort to repair the machine. The mother and five children were found at various distances from the car, where they collapsed while attempting to go for water.

FRANCE SEES RUSSIAN PLOT

Documents Showing Plans of Revolution Seized In Communist Raid.

TOKIO, July 25— (INS)— Warlike demonstrations again flared on the Manchurian border today, according to reports received here.

After five Soviet airplanes had been fired upon while flying over Manchuria, it was reported that Russian artillery, in reprisal, had fired over the border, causing great confusion among the Chinese troops. The Chinese artillery did not return the fire, it was stated.

PARIS, July 25—(INS)— Documents purporting to show that the Russian Soviets are trying to provoke a world war, with a subsequent civil war in France, in an effort to seize the French government, were obtained in a raid upon Communist headquarters last night, it was announced by the police this afternoon.

According to police, Moscow has subsided the French communist party to aid in provoking a world war "which would eventually be transformed into civil war in France" when the Reds would attempt to seize power in France.

The French Communists had planned a demonstration here on August 1, but there is every indication that it cannot be held, owing to the swift and drastic action of the police and the arrest of a number of red leaders.

These leaders are accused of accepting orders from Moscow and of receiving funds from the Communists International organization to further plans for red disorders in this city.

FIVE WOMEN, SEVEN MEN ARE PLACED IN JURY BOX; QUIZZED ABOUT DRUGS, SEX KNOWLEDGE

Reaction of "Dope" on Human Emotions Stressed by Defense Attorneys in Questioning of Prospective Peers of Confessed Slayer—Lawyers Suggest Victim Gave Opiates to Deposed O. S. U. Professor

(By JAMES L. KILGALLEN)
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

COURT ROOM, COLUMBUS, O., July 25.—Sex subjects and "experiments with drugs to determine the human reaction," will be delved into at the trial of Dr. James H. Snook, 49-year-old college professor, for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, 25-year-old co-ed, it was indicated in court today.

In questioning Elliott P. Rexford, the eighth juror to be tentatively accepted for the jury, defense Attorney John F. Seidel said:

"Would the fact that Dr. Snook and Miss Hix had experimented with doses of drugs by administering them to see the human re-action influence you for or against this defendant?"

"No," replied Rexford, who is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

SEX SUBJECTS TO BE AIRED

Sex subjects and the intimate relations between Dr. Snook and his co-ed paramour will also be aired, Attorney Seidel further indicated.

"If it develops," said Seidel, "that the question of sex and the subject of illicit relations are delved into, would the fact that this is a mixed jury of men and women cause you any embarrassment or prevent you discussing the case fully in the jury room?"

"No, it would not," Rexford replied.

Seidel intimated that it would be shown Dr. Snook and Miss Hix were intimate on the night of the crime.

The spectators laughed when Rexford, asked what part of the newspapers he reads, said:

"The funny pictures and the headlines."

SNOOK GIVEN DRUGS?

Attorney Seidel further indicated that it would be contended Miss Hix administered drugs to Snook "on the night of the crime."

In questioning Louis C. Davis, the ninth juror tentatively accepted, Seidel said:

"Would you be prejudiced against this defendant if it were shown they took drugs together and that she administered drugs to him on the night of the crime?"

"I would not," Davis replied.

Mrs. Albert Brooks, a housewife, was the tenth juror tentatively selected. When she took her seat in the jury box, the forces were divided equally, five women and five men.

Eleven jurors had been tentatively selected when court adjourned until 1:30 this afternoon. The eleventh juror selected at noon, was F. G. Mills, a steel worker. He was the 26th talesman questioned.

TWEIFTH JUROR SEATED

The twelfth juror was tentatively accepted late this afternoon. He is Harold E. Brown, a local shoe worker.

Before the state and defense began exercising peremptory challenges, Defense Attorney Seidel, questoined juror number one, Miss Edith Dysinger, who is a nurse.

"As a nurse have you any knowledge of opiates" asked Seidel.

"Yes" she replied.

"Are you familiar with the use of aphoriasiacs or drugs to stimulate sexual desire?" Seidel asked.

"No."

"Do you know anything about thyroid tablets?"

"I have experience with them in medical doses but not in over doses."

"Have you had any experience with cocaine?"

"Yes, in medical doses and in over doses."

Attorney Seidel asked if she had experience with cocaine given as "snow," hypodermics and internally in the stomach.

She replied in the affirmative.

POPE ENTERS VATICAN CITY

Historic Exit From St. Peter's Church Made By Pontiff Thursday.

VATICAN CITY, July 25— The Catholic popes were "liberated" this evening from their long, self imposed captivity in the vatican when Pope Pius XI made his historic exit from St. Peter's church into St. Peter's Square in the presence of more than a quarter of a million spectators.

It was an imposing spectacle when the pontiff was borne from the vatican church kneeling upon his podium beneath a canopy of silk. The solemnity of this scene, breaking a church precedent of nearly 60 years duration, held the mighty host of men and women spectators, drawn here from the ends of the earth, spellbound during the hour's pageantry that preceded a brief religious service at an improvised altar upon the steps of St. Peter's church.

Standing bareheaded at this temporary shrine beneath the slanting rays of the setting sun, which glinted upon the purple and crimson robes of the prelates and the brilliant uniforms of the state and papal troops, the pontiff extended his blessing to the eternal city and the entire world.

Despite a scorching sun, a crowd estimated at more than 200,000 souls had gathered in St. Peter's square, Piazza Rusticucci and their environs by 5 o'clock.

WARRANT OUT FOR "PEACHES" ARREST

NEW YORK, July 25.—A warrant of the arrest of "Peaches" Browning was issued shortly before noon today when the former bride of Edward W. "Daddy" Browning failed to appear to answer a speeding charge.

Despite the protest of Edgar Allen, her former publicity agent and friend, whose matrimonial difficulties were caused by his friendship for Peaches, an officer was dispatched to the Windsor hotel to arrest her.

Parents Of Theora Have Dramatic Spotlight At Snook Trial

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, O., July 25.—The dramatic highlight of the Snook murder trial so far is provided NOT by the defendant himself but by an elderly, silver-haired couple in the twilight of life—Mr. and Mrs. Melvin T. Hix.

Again today they sat side by side in a crowded courtroom listening to the tedious task of jury selection and hearing lawyers say things about the daughter they idolized that must be like knife thrusts to the heart.

By nightfall the jury probably will have been selected to try Dr. James H. Snook, a college professor of "the dangerous age," for the sensational slaying of Miss Theora Hix, beautiful Ohio State co-ed. Seven jurors—four women and three men—had been tentatively accepted when court was called to order this morning.

But, strangely enough, as this unusual trial with its "college background" unfolds itself it is NOT Snook, the smug looking defendant, who is drawing the attention of the spectators who, by the way, are mostly young girls—possibly some of them co-eds themselves. It is the old couple. They are tugging at the heart strings of all.

There Mr. and Mrs. Hix sit, in the front row, just outside the prisoner's dock—20 paces from Snook, the man who caused the cataclysm to break over the quiet cycle of their declining years.

Hix glares at Snook but Snook does not seem to notice him. Mrs. Hix sits with bowed head, tears in her dimming eyes.

At times Hix, himself a retired public school principal of New York City, almost leaps from his chair when one of the attorneys mentions a "love nest" and hints that his daughter and Dr. Snook during the course of their "affair" used drugs. His Theora!

Theora! What an unusual name. Mr. Hix, in a quivering voice, will explain to you the meaning of "Theora." He gave his child that name himself. That was 25 years ago when he was teaching Greek and Latin. He wanted to give his baby a name that would be distinctly individual. Se he chose "Theora," which in Greek means "God-given."

Ah, this couldn't be his girl that they are talking about this way. They had reared their child so carefully—sent her through high school, to a seminary and finally to Ohio State, a place they felt sure she would be free from temptation and where she could obtain the medical education she cherished.

The Hixes deplore all the publicity their dead daughter is receiving. But what can they do? Here they are, people who never had their names in the papers before, pushed smack into the limelight—their pictures in all the papers and the past of their child dug up and revealed in its most sordid details through the medium of a murder trial.

For no murder case in the history of this enterprising college town has ever caused such a sensation. A battery of 33 correspondents sit at three long press tables sending out to the world all essential details of the case.

The state of Ohio has four prosecutors engaged in the task of seeing to it that justice is done. Three attorneys, the best obtainable, have been employed in the defense of Snook. The town is on its ears, so to speak, and over at the University reverberations can be heard. The Snook case is the scandal of years.

How the Hixes wish they had never allowed their daughter out of their sight—to leave home in the quest of higher education! Over and over again they ask themselves the question: "Could it be possible, as careful as we were, that we failed somehow in rearing our child? Or was fate killingly unkind to us in our declining years?"

SPEEDBOAT BEATS RECORD OF PACKET

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—"One of "Ol" man river's most cherished records fell before the sweep of modern mechanical progress today when a bearded man docked his trim mahogany speedboat, "The Bogie," at the St. Louis levee three hours and one minute ahead of the record in race from New Orleans to St. Louis set in 1870 by the famous packet "Robert E. Lee."

Dr. Leroy's time for the turbulent trip up the river was 87 hours and 30 minutes. The record set 59 years ago by the "Robert E. Lee" is generally accepted as 90 hours and 31 minutes.

Who Was the Avenger—The Woman in Gold—The Woman in Red—The Woman in Grey—The Woman in Blue?

"SKYSCRAPER MURDER"

By SAMUEL SPEWACK,

Is the most baffling mystery of the year. Here's a gripping, baffling mystery, of lust, wealth, love, and death. .....

Read about the bridge shark who lured society women to his skyscraper apartment. What four women wore the gowns of gold, blue, red, and grey discovered in the murdered man's luxurious apartment near the stars? What was the purpose of the mirrored room? Who stole the Shaw diamond, and did ill luck pursue all its owners? Where was the secret alcove and did the murdered butler's diary reveal the hidden motives of the city sheik's life? Who took the mysterious passage to Paris?

THE increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; it never harms. 'Drug Angle' In Snook's Trial Is Hint of Defense

COLUMBUS, O., July 25.—(INS.) Hints that the "drug angle" may play an important part in the defense of Dr. James H. Snook, on trial for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, loomed today. It was hinted that Snook, in his battle to escape the electric chair, may contend that his 25-year old paramour fed him "dope."

Defense Attorney John F. Seidel, in questioning C. S. Baird, a prospective juror, asked this question:

"If it is shown that Theora Hix, from time to time, prepared and gave drugs to the defendant or that they took drugs together or if the drug or dope element enters this case in any way, would that prejudice you against the defendant?"

Baird replied in the negative.

Such a contention is opposite to previous hints of "drug angles" in the Snook-Hix case. Heretofore it had been hinted only that Dr. Snook, who had access to drugs as a veterinary surgeon, may have supplied them to Miss Hix.

Scottish Air

"Hail to the Chief" is a boat song which occurs in the second canto of Scott's 'Lady of the Lake." The air, by Sir Henry Rowley Bishop, is frequently played upon public occasions to announce the approach of a person of prominence.

Smoking Women No Longer Modern But Old-Fashioned

Conventions Move in Cycles, Says Noted Authoress

WHAT was considered "different" yesterday is today considered most conventional, says a prominent woman novelist. This, no doubt, sounds very confusing, but only means that the woman who used to be considered unconventional because she smoked and drank, is now in a fair way to become a back-number, while the woman who does neither is now ultra-smart.

It's such a futile business, this being modern at all costs, this persistent failure to recognize that what is daring today is old-fashioned tomorrow. George Sand, the French woman novelist, smoked cigars generations ago, and peasant women all over Europe have been smoking pipes for centuries.

But that is what inevitably happens when the pendulum is swung over to its extremes: it swings back as far again in the opposite direction. We pursue unconventionality so far that we get back to where we started from and find that we have been running around in a circle.

The trouble with this pursuit of the unconventional is that we discard so many gracious and kindly things when we throw the old conventions overboard. It is unconventional, for instance, to let one's guests into the house oneself if one has a servant to do it; but it is surely a more friendly thing to open one's door to one's friends oneself.

About this smoking business, so many women have formed the habit out of a frenzied desire to do "the smart thing," that it has undeniably become a common thing, and the smartest women now have a plan under way to establish the non-smoking policy, also in the name of smartness.

Why is it that the dress clothes convention is fast adhered to, and the most modern young matron will put on a hat before receiving luncheon guests in her own house, yet she will tell you, cocktail in hand, cigarette in holder, that she has "no time for the conventions?"

It is all very bewildering.

The same young woman who is so meticulously conventional about what is and is not done in the matter of social etiquette will probably smoke a cigar at dinner in the name of unconventionality, and really believe herself to be a modern of moderns, unaware of the fact that women smoked cigars, for enjoyment, not for style, many, many years ago.

The fact of the matter is this generation is quite painfully conventional. Nothing could be more conventional than the pathetic way in which it shrinks from being thought anything but thoroughly up to date!

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., July 25.—(INS.)—Neither air nor water hold any terrors for Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to make an aerial crossing of the Atlantic ocean.

Miss Earhart today holds the distinction of establishing a new record for women after escaping from the diving compartment of the submarine Defender in a bathing suit at a depth of 100 feet.

Landmark of Virginia Is Old Church Tower

The traveler who wanders into Jamestown, in Virginia, will see there the ruins of an old brick tower, surrounded by a wire fence, and having the appearance of an ancient age. And it is ancient, too, for it has stood on this spot for almost 300 years. It was not always so lonely, though, for when it was erected it was part of a church, one of the first churches erected in America by English settlers in the New world.

It was erected in 1635 by the early Virginia settlers and was built on the very spot where Capt. John Smith, that famous explorer, had built a wooden one some years previous. This early church was the one in which Pocahontas, the Indian maid and daughter of Powhatan, was married to John Rolf in 1614. The new church was a large one for the times. It was built entirely of brick and of wood taken from the dense forests, and the tower that stands there today was placed at the entrance.

The times were troublous in the Virginia of 300 years ago, and when the white men were not fighting the Indians they would often fight among themselves. And so about 25 years after the church had been completed Nathaniel Bacon and his soldiers rebelled against the authority of the governor, marched on Jamestown and burned the town and the church. Nothing of the latter remains today except the ruined tower, an object of beauty in its old age, and one visited by thousands of people every year.

VICTORY FOR PUBLIC OPINION

Extremely encouraging is the announcement that the International Power and Paper Co intends to dispose of its interests in nine newspapers. Obviously, the recent furry over outside control of daily journals has had the effect of making the company reconsider its policy in the light of an aroused public opinion.

It is unquestionably true that newspapers cannot be controlled by special interests without sacrificing, in the popular mind at least a large part of the independence which is supposed to be a heritage of American journalism. Influence imposed from the outside invariably results in a loss of public confidence.

These truths have been most forcefully brought to the attention of the International Power and Paper company. The entire episode, incidentally should leave a lasting impression upon all large corporations which, in their understandable desire for favorable publicity look with the acquisitive eyes upon the country's daily press.

THE NEW GIANT

For many years steel has been considered the fundamental and greatest industry, and in certain respects it will remain so But there has been in process of building in recent years a corporation that now stands greater than the United States Steel Corporation.

This "upstart" is the General Motors Corporation, whose earnings now exceed those of the United States Steel Corporation, the largest organization in the steel industry.

Only once in its history has United States Steel exceeded the record profits of General Motors and that was in 1916 when the steel industry in this country was reaping abnormal profits from European war orders.

The combined resources of General Motors and the Ford Motor company far exceed the combined resources of United States Steel and the next largest steel producing corporation. And the gross business and gross profits of the automobile industry doubtlessly are more than those of the steel industry.

Since the United States has become a nation on wheels, it should occasion no surprise that an automobile manufacturing concern has swept to such a dominating position in industry.

The automobile needs steel, but the need of the steel industry for the business of the automobile manufacturers is nearly as great. Loss of this business would wipe out the profits of the steel industry and a large part of the industry itself. So closely are the two industries allied that the rumored merging of General Motors and United States Steel seemed a perfectly natural industrial development.

This is the age of steel and motor.

A BIG CHANCE

In a recent interview Henry Ford raised the question whether the airplane engine had yet been produced and, inferentially, invited the youth of the world to produce it. In all contemporary flights the great question has been fuel consumption; in the west-east trans-Atlantic flights shortage of fuel brought the planes down on the Spanish coast. The amphibian seeking to make the northern circle is constantly exercised about fuel supply. In all preliminary information concerning long flights, the gasoline capacity figures prominently, since it, of course determines the hours the airship can stay in the air.

Obviously here is a tremendous field for the young Fords, Edisons and Westinghouses. And just as certainly somewhere in this wide world is the lad who is going to turn the trick. Just as great problems have been solved before and without the stimulating success of this age as an assurance.

In the beginning men attempted the incredible. Today nothing is incredible nor is it impossible. Somewhere out of the laboratories will come a new compact fuel, somewhere out of the shops will come, possibly, a new type of engine. Both would find a world market. So far from the inventive genuses of our time having exhausted the possibilities the age of invention and adaptation is just beginning and every boy carries in his knapsack, not a marshal's baton but the touchstone of fame fortune and service.

KEEPING ONE EYE ON THE L'ILL RASCAL!

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LXVI.

THE old man turned from her to Ralph and back again without a flicker of expression on his thin, hawk-like face. He pulled on his moustache.

Ralph's jaw dropped. "You don't want to—get married? You're turning me down? My God, Daphne—you're—you're failing me now? When I trusted you, I depended on you . . .oh my God!" He began to walk up and down distractedly. "She did promise!" he whined, "I didn't tell you any lie, Mr Greely! She did—she did!"

His breath came brokenly, his face was convulsed. Daphne was suddenly terribly afraid. Afraid he would break down, before pitiless Mr. Greely.

"Yes, I promised," she said, and came and stood beside him, her hands on his arm.

Instantly he was the old Ralph, triumphant. He gathered her to him, possessively. "There! What did I tell you!" he cried. "Didn't I say she was crazy about me! Say, when a girl is willing to marry on two hundred and fifty these days she's in love'"

The old man watched impassively. He had nothing to say.

Ralph seemed unconscious alike of the old man's silence, and Daphne's frozen quiet While he was extravagantly kissing her hands, and murmuring brokenly to her, the phone rang

"Hello!" Greely growled.

"This is Miss Garroty." Crystal's voice came sweetly over the wire. "You don't know me, and I wouldn't bother you if it weren't frightfully necessary. Mr. Greely, I'm Ralph McKevitt's friend, and I know you know him so well—he's spoken so beautifully of you so often—and there's a matter of importance . . could you tell me where I can get him? I've tried and tried his house—"

"Hold on—he's right here," the old man said, and then to Ralph. "I hate to interrupt you, but there is another lady—"

Ralph answered nervously. . . . "Yes . . . All right . . . In a few moments. . . "

He turned to the two who were listening. "It's—it's something unexpected Will you excuse me? I'll be right back—"

When he had gone Daphne gathered up her notebook and pencils and turned to go, too. But her wobbly knees failed her. They wouldn't hold her up. With a little despairing cry she sank into the chair and wept.

"Oh, he'll come back, Greely murmured cynically.

"That's why I'm crying," Daphne sobbed "Because he will—and you can't go back on a man when he's down—you taught me that yourself"

* * *

"Something awful has happened!" Crystal told Ralph over the telephone "They've found out about us . . . the janitor saw you going out that morning . . . they're going to put me out . . you've got to come! Come quick'"

Of course this thing had to come up now Just when he had declared his engagement to Daphne. He had thought it would save him from the penitentiary. Greely would never send him up if it would hurt Daphne, he thought too much of her for that "Too damn much'" he thought, remembering the "my dear" and the incident of the car. And Daphne had said she didn't want to get married. Afraid she would lose her hold on Greely no doubt.

"She's crazy about me, all right," he told himself grimly, driving up the hill to Crystal's apartment, "but I'm going to have to keep an eye on her. I won't have any wife of mine cheating on me. Greely can put that in his pipe and smoke it. And that pup Winters too. He needn't pull any "holier-than-thou" stuff with me, either. This business isn't all cleared up yet.

"If he didn't have pretty damn good reasons for clearing out when he did, he wouldn't have. Just let them wait a while. They'll find out that Ralph Iverson McKevitt isn't down and out yet. Greely better pull in his horns too, or I'll spill a few things I know on him. I could get him ruled out of the Bar Association. I guess he's afraid of me, or he wouldn't have backed down and given me the chance as salesman

"If he dared bring this thing out in court he'd have done his damnedest to send me to jail all right. It's where he'd like to see me. Friendship for my father, bah! I'm not my father! He never did intend to send me up. If I hadn't lost my head like a fool and dragged Daphne in, I wouldn't have had to marry her. I'd have been safe enough without her . . what'll I do about Crystal? The only true friend I ever had! Her heart'll break when she hears about Daphne—"

He was still wondering how he would ever tell her, when he parked at her door and hurried on up the stairs.

He was out of breath and trembling with emotion when he gained the inner door and rapped—the old signal.

He thought he heard the sound of sobbing inside. A monotonous tired weeping.

When he had signalled twice without an answer, he turned the knob and entered . . . "Crystal, it's Ralph. . . . May I come in?"

She lay face downward on the wide davenport, her bright gold head buried in a mound of silk cushions. Jade green, Cerise Mustard color. A black and gold kimona slipped from one rounded shoulder Her flesh was like satin incredibly soft and smooth.

He put his hands in his pocket and cleared his throat "This is a fine time to send for me, Crystal! And at Greely's office, too . . . what'll he think? As if I didn't have troubles enough of my own right now. . . . We'll, you haven't told me what's the matter? Now that I'm here you might as well tell me. . . . . Come on, out with it'"

He hated himself for being so stern with her . . . poor girl, with no one to turn to but him. . . He had his course mapped out. He would have to go on with it . . .

Crystal wiped her eyes and sat up She looked at him without a trace of resentment in her round, lovely face. "You're angry with me," she said softly. "I don't blame you. It was wrong of me to call you. I—I got panicky, that is all. I thought I couldn't go without saying goodbye. I had to see you—just once—"

"You're going away. . . . Good thing of course. . . He breathed more easily . . And yet . . . and yet . . .

She lifted her hands to brush the curls out of her eyes, and the wide sleeves fell back disclosing her round, soft arms. She had never been so alluring.

"Yes. I'm going away, Ralph . . . never to come back any more. So I had to see you once first. It was weak of me. . . . I'm afraid. . . so terribly afraid. . . ."

She began to cry again, and it unnerved him horribly. His eye began to twitch . . . that nervous affliction that had come upon him recently. . . . "Do you mean you are going to get married?" he demanded gruffly.

"Oh, no!" she said reproachfully. "I couldn't do that! How could I marry anyone but you? I am just going away—that's all—away—somewhere—"

"Where?"

"Don't ask me—Ralph—please don't—"

"Where are you going? Answer me? Crystal! Where have you got to go?"

She broke down then, and clung to him, weeping wildly. "Nowhere. That's just it—I haven't anywhere to go. My mother's forgotten me, she's running around with some insurance man . . . it breaks my heart . . . and I have flunked in my art studies. I know I'll never make an artist now. I can't even earn my own living, I'm not strong enough to go out and work like other girls Mama spent all my money, you know that, I haven't a cent—they're going to put me out of here because I can't pay the rent—I've even pawned my things—"

"Crystal!"

"Yes, it's all true. You may as well know. I've come to the end. I've got some poison in the bathroom. When you go I'll take it. Oh, I wish I were brave like you! I'm afraid. I'm too young to die, Ralph, but what's there left for me—nothing——"

She was kissing him wildly, her arms tight around him. "Goodby, dearest; goodbye, goodbye!"

He began to reason with her. "Shh! You don't really mean that. Why, darling, you wouldn't do a thing like that? And, see, I'll give you the money you need. I'll write you a check. I—I'll find something for you. Don't cry, dear—please don't. I'll write the check now——"

But she only wept the harder. "You'll pay this month's rent! What's that? That isn't all. I'll be put out anyhow. You got me into this—you brought me here. They've all found out—they've seen you coming here—I'm disgraced. I can't hold up my head again. I'm going to kill myself—it's the only thing left—my art unappreciated, my love unreturned—"

"Crystal! For heaven's sake—listen—"

"What's the good of listening? You know it's true. You know you're tired of me—you know you won't marry me—"

He couldn't stay and listen to that . . . he couldn't go off and leave her to die. . . .

Well, why should he? Why should he sacrifice her for Daphne? Daphne was too sure of herself anyway . . . teach her a lesson . . .

"Get your hat," he whispered, his cheek against hers. "Dry those poor eyes. . . . We're going to get married—now!"

THEATERS

MYRNA LOY STARS

After months of extensive search in which more than 30 actresses were given screen tests, Myrna Loy was finally selected to play the role of Nubi, in "The Squall," which is showing at the Cliftona theater.

Nubi is the central character in "The Squall" She is the gypsy gale of passion that leaves many destroyed loves in her wake. Those who have previewed the picture state that Myrna Loy is probably the only actress on the screen with the personality that is required to make Nubi the exotic temptress she was on the New York stage when "The Squall" had a whole year's run on Broadway.

Others in the cast of "The Squall," are Alice Joyce, Loretta Young, Richard Tucker, Carroll Nye, Zasu Pitts, Nicholas Soussanin and others of screen prominence. It was directed by Alexander Korda, famous Hungarian director.

Sally Phipps and Nick Stuart are starred at the Grand theater Thursday in "The News Parade," depicting the exciting adventures of a new reel camera man. It is an epic of courage, thrills and daring and a heroic tale of romance and adventure. A. F. B. O. comedy and Fox News are also on the program.

CHARIOT RACE GREAT

The Chariot Race and the Sea Fight in "Ben-Hur" are the outstanding sensations of the cinema world. Ramon Novarro as the galley slave and charioteer, May McAvoy as the sweet Esther and Francis X. Bushman as the cruel centurian, exert a potent magnetism on every spectator. This magnificent attraction, which cost $4,000,000 to produce, will be shown at the Met Theater for the last time tonight.

Nerves Need Watching

There is a tendency for people who feel indisposed to blame it on their nerves and let it go at that. Real nervous disorders, however are serious and the excuse of nerves should not be used to camouflage some other disorder.

Ancient Inscription

The famous Behistun rock in Persia, on which is carved the triumphs of Darius the Great, is 300 feet above the highway. Sir Henry Rawlinson, an Englishman, discovered these inscriptions in 1835, 22 centuries after they had been carved there.

Scarlet on the Bench

Scarlet was the "judicial color" throughout the Middle ages, and those dignitaries of the church who were entitled to sit as judges in England during the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries wore robes of that hue.

Guides Japan's Hand

Premier Yuko Hamaguchi of Japan is busy forming a new cabinet since the downfall of the Tanaka government with the knowledge that, if the China-Russian trouble assumes serious proportions, he may have to take steps to intervene.

Bunyan's Flute

While John Bunyan, who wrote Pilgrim's Progress, was in prison his jailors heard music coming from his cell They decided to take away his instrument, but the music ceased as they drew near the cell, and they could find nothing to show how the music was made. From time to time the music sounded, but only Bunyan and his book were found What had happened was that Bunyan had made a flute from a loose rail of his stool, and on hearing the gaoler's step he would slip it back into its place and pore over his book.

Eliminating Noise

Recent tests of ways to reduce impact noises in buildings have shown that such noises as arise from walking or vibration of machinery can be reduced by addition of a floating floor and a suspended ceiling.

Too True

There had been another quarrel in the Spatts' menage, and Spatt sat glowering at the evening paper Mrs. Spatt hated him for his silence.

"Furthermore," she began again, "you certainly aren't much of a husband."

The man threw down his paper and regarded the woman he had led to the altar appraisingly.

"Well, my dear," he said wearily, "I think I can truthfully say you're a lot of a wife."

Parachute Fall

How far a parachute jumper can allow himself to fall before opening his parachute has never been determined. An army air corps sergeant, to demonstrate that people do not lose consciousness in falling, dropped 1,500 feet before pulling his rip cord.

THE NEW GIANT

For many years steel has been considered the fundamental and greatest industry, and in certain respects it will remain so. But there has been in process of building in recent years a corporation that now stands greater than the United States Steel Corporation.

This "upstart" is the General Motors Corporation, whose earnings now exceed those of the United States Steel Corporation, the largest organization in the steel industry.

Only once in its history has United States Steel exceeded the record profits of General Motors and that was in 1916 when the steel industry in this country was reaping abnormal profits from European war orders.

The combined resources of General Motors and the Ford Motor company far exceed the combined resources of United States Steel and the next largest steel producing corporation. And the gross business and gross profits of the automobile industry doubtlessly are more than those of the steel industry.

Since the United States has become a nation on wheels, it should occasion no surprise that an automobile manufacturing concern has swept to such a dominating position in industry.

The automobile needs steel, but the need of the steel industry for the business of the automobile manufacturers is nearly as great. Loss of this business would wipe out the profits of the steel industry and a large part of the industry itself. So closely are the two industries allied that the rumored merging of General Motors and United States Steel seemed a perfectly natural industrial development.

This is the age of steel and motor.

A BIG CHANCE

In a recent interview Henry Ford raised the question whether the airplane engine had yet been produced and, inferentially, invited the youth of the world to produce it. In all contemporary flights the great question has been fuel consumption; in the west-east trans-Atlantic flights shortage of fuel brought the planes down on the Spanish coast. The amphibian seeking to make the northern circle is constantly exercised about fuel supply. In all preliminary information concerning long flights, the gasoline capacity figures prominently, since it, of course, determines the hours the airship can stay in the air.

Obviously here is a tremendous field for the young Fords, Edisons and Westinghouses. And just as certainly somewhere in this wide world is the lad who is going to turn the trick. Just as great problems have been solved before and without the stimulating success of this age as an assurance.

In the beginning men attempted the incredible. Today nothing is incredible nor is it impossible. Somewhere out of the laboratories will come a new compact fuel; somewhere out of the shops will come, possibly, a new tpye of engine. Both would find a world market. So far from the inventive geniuses of our time having exhausted the possibilities, the age of invention and adaptation is just beginning, and every boy carries in his knapsack not a marshal's baton but the touchstone of fame, fortune and service.

KEEPING ONE EYE ON THE L'ILL RASCAL

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LXVI.

THE old man turned from her to Ralph and back again without a flicker of expression on his thin, hawk-like face. He pulled on his moustache.

Ralph's jaw dropped. "You don't want to—get married? You're turning me down? My God, Daphne—you're—you're failing me now? When I trusted you, I depended on you . . .oh my God!" He began to walk up and down distractedly. "She did promise!" he whined, "I didn't tell you any lie, Mr. Greely! She did—she did!"

His breath came brokenly, his face was convulsed. Daphne was suddenly terribly afraid. Afraid he would break down, before pitiless Mr. Greely.

"Yes, I promised," she said, and came and stood beside him, her hands on his arm.

Instantly he was the old Ralph, triumphant. He gathered her to him, possessively. "There! What did I tell you!" he cried. "Didn't I say she was crazy about me! Say, when a girl is willing to marry on two hundred and fifty these days she's in love!"

The old man watched impassively. He had nothing to say.

Ralph seemed unconscious alike of the old man's silence, and Daphne's frozen quiet. While he was extravagantly kissing her hands, and murmuring brokenly to her, the phone rang.

"Hello!" Greely growled.

"This is Miss Garroty." Crystal's voice came sweetly over the wire. "You don't know me, and I wouldn't bother you if it weren't frightfully necessary. Mr. Greely, I'm Ralph McKevitt's friend, and I know you know him so well—he's spoken so beautifully of you so often—and there's a matter of importance . . . could you tell me where I can get him? I've tried and tried his house—"

"Hold on—he's right here," the old man said, and then to Ralph, "I hate to interrupt you, but there is another lady—"

Ralph answered nervously. . . . "Yes . . . All right . . . In a few moments. . . ."

He turned to the two who were listening. "It's—it's something unexpected. Will you excuse me? I'll be right back—"

When he had gone Daphne gathered up her notebook and pencils and turned to go, too. But her wobbly knees failed her. They wouldn't hold her up. With a little despairing cry she sank into the chai and wept.

"Oh, he'll come back, Greely murmured cynically.

"That's why I'm crying," Daphne sobbed. "Because he will—and you can't go back on a man when he's down—you taught me that yourself!"

* * *

"Something awful has happened!" Crystal told Ralph over the telephone. "They've found out about us . . . the janitor saw you going out that morning . . . they're going to put me out . . . you've got to come! Come quick!"

Of course this thing had to come up now. Just when he had declared his engagement to Daphne. He had thought it would save him from the penitentiary. Greely would never send him up if it would hurt Daphne, he thought too much of her for that. "Too damn much!" he thought, remembering the "my dear" and the incident of the car. And Daphne had said she didn't want to get married. Afraid she would lose her hold on Greely no doubt.

"She's crazy about me, all right," he told himself grimly, driving up the hill to Crystal's apartment, "but I'm going to have to keep an eye on her. I won't have any wife of mine cheating on me. Greely can put that in his pipe and smoke it. And that pup Winters too. He needn't pull any "holier-than-thou" stuff with me, either. This business isn't all cleared up yet.

"If he didn't have pretty damn good reasons for clearing out when he did, he wouldn't have. Just let them wait a while. They'll find out that Ralph Iverson McKevitt isn't down and out yet. Greely better pull in his horns too, or I'll spill a few things I know on him. I could get him ruled out of the Bar Association. I guess he's afraid of me, or he wouldn't have backed down and given me the chance as salesman.

"If he dared bring this thing out in court he'd have done his damnedest to send me to jail all right. It's where he'd like to see me. Friendship for my father, bah! I'm not my father! He never did intend to send me up. If I hadn't lost my head like a fool and dragged Daphne in, I wouldn't have had to marry her. I'd have been safe enough without her . . . what'll I do about Crystal? The only true friend I ever had! Her heart'll break when she hears about Daphne—"

He was still wondering how he would ever tell her, when he parked at her door and hurried on up the stairs.

He was out of breath and trembling with emotion when he gained the inner door and rapped—the old signal.

He thought he heard the sound of sobbing inside. A monotonous tired weeping.

When he had signalled twice without an answer, he turned the knob and entered. . . . "Crystal, it's Ralph. . . . May I come in?"

She lay face downward on the wide davenport, her bright gold head buried in a mound of silk cushions. Jade green. Cerise. Mustard color. A black and gold kimona slipped from one rounded shoulder. Her flesh was like satin incredibly soft and smooth.

He put his hands in his pocket and cleared his throat. "This is a fine time to send for me, Crystal! And at Greely's office, too . . . what'll he think? As if I didn't have troubles enough of my own right now. . . . Well, you haven't told me what's the matter? Now that I'm here you might as well tell me . . . . Come on, out with it!"

He hated himself for being so stern with her . . . poor girl, with no one to turn to but him. . . . He had his course mapped out. He would have to go on with it . . . .

Crystal wiped her eyes and sat up. She looked at him without a trace of resentment in her round, lovely face. "You're angry with me," she said softly. "I don't blame you. It was wrong of me to call you. I—I got panicky, that is all. I thought I couldn't go without saying goodbye. I had to see you—just once—"

"You're going away. . . . Good thing of course. . . He breathed more easily . . . And yet . . . and yet. . . .

She lifted her hands to brush the curls out of her eyes, and the wide sleeves fell back disclosing her round, soft arms. She had never been so alluring.

"Yes, I'm going away, Ralph . . . never to come back any more. So I had to see you once first. It was weak of me. . . . I'm afraid. . . so terribly afraid. . . ."

She began to cry again, and it unnerved him horribly. His eye began to twitch . . . that nervous affliction that had come upon him recently. . . . "Do you mean you are going to get married?" he demanded gruffly.

"Oh, no!" she said reproachfully. "I couldn't do that! How could I marry anyone but you? I am just going away—that's all—away—somewhere—"

"Where?"

"Don't ask me—Ralph—please don't—"

"Where are you going? Answer me? Crystal! Where have you got to go?"

She broke down then, and clung to him, weeping wildly. 'Nowhere. That's just it—I haven't anywhere to go. My mother's forgotten me, she's running around with some insurance man . . . it breaks my heart . . . and I have flunked in my art studies, I know I'll never make an artist now. I can't even earn my own living, I'm not strong enough to go out and work like other girls. Mama spent all my money, you know that, I haven't a cent—they're going to put me out of here because I can't pay the rent—I've even pawned my things—"

"Crystal!"

"Yes, it's all true. You may as well know. I've come to the end. I've got some poison in the bathroom. When you go I'll take it. Oh, I wish I were brave like you! I'm afraid. I'm too young to die, Ralph, but what's there left for me—nothing——"

She was kissing him wildly, her arms tight around him. "Goodby, dearest; goodbye, goodbye!"

He began to reason with her. "Shh! You don't really mean that. Why, darling, you wouldn't do a thing like that? And, see, I'll give you the money you need. I'll write you a check. I—I'll find something for you. Don't cry, dear—please don't. I'll write the check now——"

But she only wept the harder. "You'll pay this month's rent! What's that? That isn't all. I'll be put out anyhow. You got me into this—you brought me here. They've all found out—they've seen you coming here—I'm disgraced, I can't hold up my head again. I'm going to kill myself—it's the only thing left—my art unappreciated, my love unreturned—"

"Crystal! For heaven's sake—listen—"

"What's the good of listening? You know it's true. You know you're tired of me—you know you won't marry me—"

He couldn't stay and listen to that . . . he couldn't go off and leave her to die. . . .

Well, why should he? Why should he sacrifice her for Daphne? Daphne was too sure of herself anyway . . . teach her a lesson . . . .

"Get your hat," he whispered, his cheek against hers. "Dry those poor eyes. . . . We're going to get married—now!"

This magnificent attraction, which cost $4,000,000 to produce, will be shown at the Met Theater for the last time tonight.

Nerves Need Watching

There is a tendency for people who feel indisposed to blame it on their nerves and let it go at that. Real nervous disorders, however, are serious and the excuse of nerves should not be used to camouflage some other disorder.

Ancient Inscription

The famous Behistun rock in Persia, on which is carved the triumphs of Darius the Great, is 300 feet above the highway. Sir Henry Rawlinson, an Englishman, discovered these inscriptions in 1835, 23 centuries after they had been carved there.

Scarlet on the Bench

Scarlet was the "judicial color" throughout the Middle ages, and those dignitaries of the church who were entitled to sit as judges in England during the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries wore robes of that hue.

Guides Japan's Hand

Premier Yuko Hamaguchi of Japan is busy forming a new cabinet since the downfall of the Tanaka government with the knowledge that, if the China-Russian trouble assumes serious proportions, he may have to take steps to intervene.

Bunyan's Flute

While John Bunyan, who wrote Pilgrim's Progress, was in prison his jailors heard music coming from his cell. They decided to take away his instrument, but the music ceased as they drew near the cell, and they could find nothing to show how the music was made. From time to time the music sounded, but only Bunyan and his book were found. What had happened was that Bunyan had made a flute from a loose rail of his stool, and on hearing the goaler's step he would slip it back into its place and pore over his book.

Eliminating Noise

Recent tests of ways to reduce impact noises in buildings have shown that such noises as arise from walking or vibration of machinery can be reduced by addition of a floating floor and a suspended ceiling.

Too True

There had been another quarrel in the Spatts' menage, and Spatt sat glowering at the evening paper. Mrs. Spatt hated him for his silence.

"Furthermore," she began again, "you certainly aren't much of a husband."

The man threw down his paper and regarded the woman he had led to the altar appraisingly.

"Well, my dear," he said wearily, "I think I can truthfully say you're a lot of a wife."

Parachute Fall

How far a parachute jumper can allow himself to fall before opening his parachute has never been determined. An army air corps sergeant, to demonstrate that people do not lose consciousness in falling, dropped 1,500 feet before pulling his rip cord.

HOYT'S COMPOUND HAS NO EQUAL

Declares This Well Known Ohio Resident; Now Like Different Person.

MRS. SALLIE CARDER

"HOYT'S COMPOUND HAS NO EQUAL in my estimation," declared Mrs. Sally Carder, 1020 Sherman Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

"I want to TELL THE WORLD what a great medicine this Hoyt's Compound is and how it brought back my health after everything else HAD FAILED. Have lived here in Springfield for the past nine years and about three years ago I was operated on for appendicitis and since that time have never regained my health. My whole system was just simply torn to pieces and every organ in my body was wrong. I was constantly troubled with female weakness and was in such a bad shape that I could hardly eat anything as it would sour on my stomach. Appetite was very poor and I was so nervous that it was simply impossible for me to sleep. I suffered agony all the time and had tried every kind of medicine and spent much money trying to find something to bring relief, but everything failed until I found the Hoyt's Compound. I am certainly thankful that I tried this great medicine because it is the only one that ever did me any good and now it seems that something has moved out of my body and a new inside is in me. My misery is over and I now sleep well at night and feel like a different person entirely I am glad to tell my friends about this great medicine and I am giving it to my little girl who is 10 years of age and she is getting wonderful results from it also I want to urge all who suffer to get this medicine NOW and start taking it."

Hoyt's Compound is now being introduced and explained every day here in this city at Wilder's Drug Store and is also sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

PASTOR OF FLOYD COLLINS IS HERE

Everyone can recall the tragedy several years ago of Floyd Collins who died entrapped in Sand Cave, Barren-co., Ky. Many will also remember that after some time, the body was recovered by an evangelist named James Smith.

This same Kentucky preacher is conducting services every night at the Pentecostal Mission, 19 York-st. Mr. Smith will deliver sermons for everyone. His own personality, that of a traveling parson from the Kentucky mountains, together with the part he played in the tragedy in his territory, are said to have brought thousands before him.

He says he preaches Jesus only and his motto is back to the bible.

TWO WOUNDED BY ONLY ONE BULLET

MANSFIELD, O., July 25 — (INS)—That old axiom, "two birds with one stone" came true with vehemence and consequently two persons are recuperating here today in General hospital. Two wounds, one bullet as the cause.

I. E. Davidson, 50, night watchman, and his mother-in-law Mrs. Laura Naylor, were the victims.

Davidson, took his holster containing his gun and laid it on the refrigerator. The holster slipped and in falling the gun was discharged. The bullet entered Davidson's left leg above the knee and finally halted its travels in the hip of Mrs Naylor.

Trace "Jolly Roger" to Old Symbol of Death

Nearly all the ancient peoples had symbols of death but the probability is that the well known skull and crossbones are really a rude representation of a dead body with the arms crossed in the usual attitude of restauration. Its origin is traced back to the Egyptian Feast of the Dead at which it was customary to have some representation of a skull. The Romans, with the famous phrase "Let us drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die" used a skeleton to decorate their banquet halls as a reminder of the life to come to overtake the revelers. The skull and crossbones as a pirate symbol is not known, but was quite unknown to the pirates of history and no legal proof. The earliest known use of the [illegible] called the "Jolly Roger" was in the days of Captain Kidd. Its origin is obscure.

HOYT'S COMPOUND HAS NO EQUAL

Declares This Well Known Ohio Resident; Now Like Different Person.

MRS. SALLIE CARDER

"HOYT'S COMPOUND HAS NO EQUAL in my estimation," declared Mrs. Sally Carder, 1020 Sherman Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

"I want to TELL THE WORLD what a great medicine this Hoyt's Compound is and how it brought back my health after everything else HAD FAILED. Have lived here in Springfield for the past nine years and about three years ago I was operated on for appendicitis and since that time have never regained my health. My whole system was just simply torn to pieces and every organ in my body was wrong. I was constantly troubled with female weakness and was in such a bad shape that I could hardly eat anything as it would sour on my stomach. Appetite was very poor and I was so nervous that it was simply impossible for me to sleep. I suffered agony all the time and had tried every kind of medicine and spent much money trying to find something to bring relief, but everything failed until I found the Hoyt's Compound. I am certainly thankful that I tried this great medicine because it is the only one that ever did me any good and now it seems that something has moved out of my body and a new inside is in me. My misery is over and I now sleep well at night and feel like a different person entirely. I am glad to tell my friends about this great medicine and I am giving it to my little girl who is 10 years of age and she is getting wonderful results from it also. I want to urge all who suffer to get this medicine NOW and start taking it."

Hoyt's Compound is now being introduced and explained every day here in this city at Wilder's Drug Store and is also sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Insulted Again

The two artists met each other at the varnishing day exhibition.

They discussed art together and were unanimous in blaming the judges for not having selected their immortal works to be hung on the walls.

"Well, I can't grumble, I'm not doing so badly," remarked one of the pair at last.

"How's that?" asked the other. "Got a commission?"

"Yes, from a millionaire. He wants his children painted badly."

"O," remarked his companion, "then I should say that you're the very man for the job."

Can't Assign Credit for Invention of Compass

The origin of the mariner's compass is obscure. By some students the instrument was said to have been introduced into Europe from the East. Others say it was a western invention. It was certainly known to European navigators as early as the Twelfth century. "Bible" de Provins, whose satirical "Bible" is supposed to have been completed in 1205, described "a contrivance" of sailors which never deceived them.

"They have an ugly brown stone which attracts iron," he wrote. "They mark the exact quarter to which the needle points, which they have rubbed on this stone and afterward stuck into a straw. They merely put it in the water, in which the straw causes it to swim; then the point turns directly toward the (North) star, with such certainty that it will never fail."

Guyot wrote about the compass as if it were a new thing, but other writers reveal that the English in the Twelfth century had already mounted the needle on a pivot and so done away with the straw and water.—New York Times.

Inventor of Linoleum

Linoleum, which is a process of manufacturing a floor covering from oxidized linseed oil and powdered cork, was introduced into England in 1830 by a man named Walton. We do not find it was on the market in the United States during the Civil war.—Washington Star.

MENTAL EXPLOSIONS UNDERMINE SYSTEM

It's So Easy to "Flare Up" Under the Physical Stress of Stifling Heat, Says Authority, Urging All to Practice Calmness and Self-Restraint.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I had lunch with Senator Swanson, of Virginia. The Senator is very much of a philosopher. His active mind runs the whole gamut of life. It is surprising how many things he has given serious thought.

DR. COPELAND.

A good many times the Senator has mentioned these articles. The other day he asked if I wouldn't like a few subjects for discussion.

I laughingly said I would be glad to have them, saying: "I can write on any subject if I have the subject."

That was said in jest, of course, but for one who writes an article every day, day after day and year after year, it does help a lot to have somebody suggest a subject he would like to have discussed. That is one reason I prize the thousands of letters written me by the readers of this column. I get first-hand information of their desires and needs.

Anyhow, Senator Swanson said: "Let us have a series of articles relating to the Summer season—Summer fruits, foods and drinks, how to avoid Summer diarrhoea, typhoid and malaria, and the importance of calmness of mind."

Then the Senator suggested that many a man is upset, thrown off his digestion and made half sick, because of a nagging wife. "But," I broke in, "what about the wife who is pestered and lectured and beset by a disagreeable husband?"

We agreed that both sexes have equal occasion to practice forbearance and kindliness of conduct. There can be no doubt, I am sure, that happy marital relations have much to do with good temper, good digestion and good health.

Hot weather is, indeed, trying to soul and body. Tired, sweaty, suffering bodies set the nerves on edge. It is easy to have a mental explosion, a regular "brain storm," under the physical stress of stifling heat.

The most difficult time in a man's life is from 4 to 7 o'clock in the afternoon. That period is equally trying for the housewife who is preparing dinner in a hot kitchen.

There must be a bridle on the tongue and severe self-restraint during these hours or trouble will begin. A disturbance originating then may be carried on through the evening, break the sleep as it continues, and make the morning after a sort of hell on earth

To have many such explosions will undermine the health No one can question that continued unhappiness is fatal to vigor and good health

Thank you Senator, for your suggestions. I shall accept all of them

Deadly White Ants

The United States exports iron telegraph poles to South Africa. Wood is abundant and cheaper, but it would be quickly destroyed by the powerful jaws of the terrible white ants In Ceylon black "army" ants marched on the war path. A scientist counting them, found 300,000 soldiers in one army, marching in companies about twenty abreast, with officers running up and down the line keeping order. Let a horse or man break a leg and fall in the path of army ants, and in a few hours only a skeleton is left, according to Prof J. Arthur Thomson in "Outline of Science."

Ohio Utilities vs Motor Transport.

Circleville Merchants vs Coca Colas at the Commons.

Staging a big comeback, the C. A. C. was victorious over the Pettit Tires by the score of 16 to 2, Wednesday evening. The club team scored most of their runs in the fourth inning when they scored six runs. In the first inning the score was 2 to 2, and until the fourth inning the score remained the same.

The Pettit Tires played very hard to hold the club but with no avail. The club team is now running a very close race for first place. The Tires still remain in a tie with Doggy Ward's Ten for fifth place. Parks was responsible for three of the club's runs while five others of the team were credited with two runs. Tubby Clerebome excelled in some very fine pitching. Both teams also played a very good outfield.

WARD'S TEAM BEATEN

The new organized team under the name of Doggy Ward's Ten met its first defeat Wednesday evening when it was defeated by the Lutheran Brotherhood 3 to 0. Each of these three runs were the result of wild pitches by Ward's pitcher. After the ice had been broken the new team got together and decided to do something, but it couldn't be done. Ward's team were not quite so lucky as the Lutherans as their pitcher did not toss many wild pitches. This is the first defeat met by Ward's Ten and according to Doggy Ward, that is the last one.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

UPRIGHT SWING PRODUCES STRAIGHT BALL

THE beginner should cultivate the upright swing if he intends to be a stylist at golf. It also produces the best results day in and day out. When we use a flat swing, that is, one that comes more around the body, we are constantly in danger of hooking. Again, if we fear a hook and let up the least bit the chances are that the ball will be pushed off to the right.

Hitting the ball with an upright swing and permitting the clubhead to continue on through will produce a straight ball. There may be some danger in topping, but this fault cannot be chronic, nor even serious enough to be considered. Topping is a fault that comes from lifting the head, and among stars it is only an occasional occurrence.

CLEANERS TO PLAY EAGLES

Central Ohio League Leadership At Stake In Ashville Game Sunday.

The Circleville Eagles and the league leading Francis Dry Cleaners will meet in what will be one of the most important games of the season Sunday afternoon at Community Park in Ashville.

Announcement has been made that the game will again be played at Ashville this Sunday due to the fact that the local grounds will not be cleaned up and in condition following the big carnival which the Eagles are holding there this week.

The game Sunday with the top notch Cleaners will doubtless be one of the hardest fought games of the season. The Dry Cleaners are fighting hard to remain in first place while the local team is fighting just as hard to pull them down on an even basis with them in the league race. Both teams will be out there doing their very best to cop the verdict and local fans who were more than pleased with the results of the game last Sunday will see another one this week which promises to be even a better one than the game played with the Mt. Air aggregation.

Both teams must win in order to gain the advantage needed to keep them in the pennant race. Both teams are already claiming the victory. The Cleaners say they defeated the Eagles before and they can do it again. Manager Francis states that his boys are in splendid shape and eager to meet the Birds. He boasts that his men will knock Jock Boyd, the Circleville pitching ace, out of the box in less than five innings.

Of course the local manager is taking the boasts made by Mr. Francis as a joke and local fans who saw the game here before with the Cleaners feel the same way about it. Harvey Miller, a former Circleville boy who is playing with the Birds and hitting the ball at a ferocious clip, made the remark that Bill Purtell, the Francis pitcher, would have to have something more than just spit on the ball this time.

THE RULE IS!

By GEORGE SARGENT
Golf Professional

The Situation:

What rule applies as to priority on a golf course? What standing has a single player on a course?

The Rule Is:

Pairs, threesomes, and foursomes have precedence over any other kind of match and are entitled to pass them. A single player has no standing and must give way to any other kind of match. If there is more than one clear hole ahead of any match you may play through on request. A match playing a whole round may pass a match playing a shorter round.

First Movies

It is said that the first motion pictures were received in New York with very little enthusiasm. They were presented in 1896 at Koster and Bial's Music hall on Sixth avenue. The audience was apparently under the impression that they were a trick advance of some kind in shadowgraphy, which was then very popular. The first movie audience was even more critical than a modern first night crowd and did not even deign to applaud.

REAL BATTLES ON PARK CARD

Kid Wagner and Shifty Seymour Promise Action For Fans Tonight.

When Eddie "Kid" Wagner and Shifty Seymour tie up Thursday night at Scippo Park only one word can describe it and that's "action." These two boys hail from Chillicothe and both have a reputation of making things lively for the other fellow in the ring. So when these two start mixing it looks as though somebody will have to drop.

The Mexican Kid, of Cincinnati, and Kid Brown, of Chillicothe, will again meet in the evening's final. Fans will remember last week these two boys fought a real battle which endede in a draw. But it seems as neither was satisfied because both are coming back with the intention of putting each away. When they are in that mood it may mean a double knock-out.

Lundy Ferguson, of Circleville, will meet Joey Craig, of Yellowbud, in one of the preliminary battles. Both of these boys are good clean sportsmen and both promise the fight public a real scrap. In the opener of the evening Battling Nash of Chillicothe will meet Pat Hartley of Circleville.

There are 12 rounds of clean action on Thursday night's card and the fighters are eager to go. A large crowd is expected so be there early in order to see every blow of these fist bouts which will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

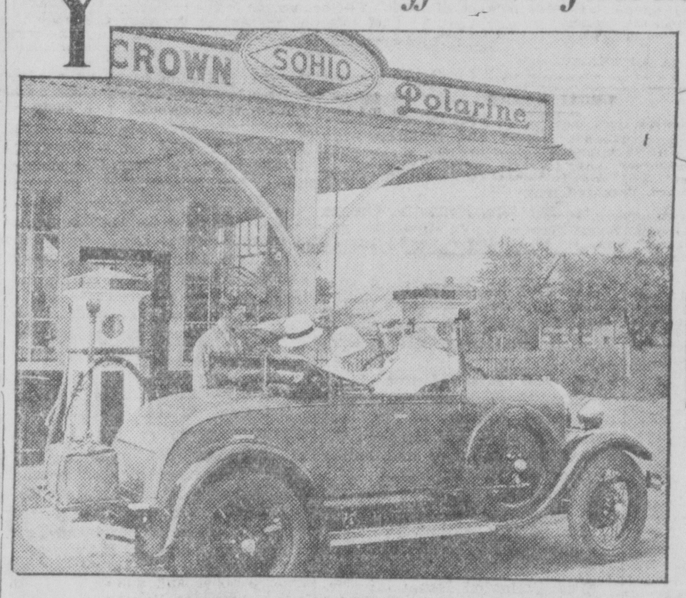
You need this "different" fuel in hot weather



SOHIO gives smooth, even power no matter how fast or far you drive...

WITH Summer Sohio in your gasoline tank you'll find your car operating smoother and cooler. You'll find less need for shifting gears on hills. Carbon knocks will disappear. Watch your mileage increase.

The reason is simple. Sohio is specially refined to meet warm weather driving conditions. In Summer the danger of overheating is always present; knocking motors labor on hills and cause excessive vibration, needless loss of power and unnecessary wear and tear on the engine. Motors become lazy and sluggish, and fail to develop their full efficiency.

Put Summer Sohio Ethyl in your tank and forget summer driving troubles. You'll find Summer Sohio giving your motor a new snap and added power. You'll find your operation cooler and quieter, too, because Summer Sohio does these things:

1. Prevents pre-ignition
2. Stops carbon knocks
3. Gives smooth, even power
4. Makes frequent gear shifting unnecessary

Drive up to one of the 700 Red-White-and-Blue Standard service stations that dot the State of Ohio. Or stop at one of the thousands of Sohio dealers' pumps. Ask for Sohio. Try it out—and join the thousands who are now convinced that there IS a difference in gasoline.

RED CROWN Changed, too

Following our established custom, Red Crown is also refined to special warm-weather standards.

Platinum

Practically all platinum comes from placer deposits. That is gravel and sand banks which have washed down from rocks containing platinum. The exception to this rule is the platinum deposit recently discovered in South Africa. Here the metal occurs in rocks in sufficient quantity to warrant shaft mining.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

CLEANERS TO PLAY EAGLES

Central Ohio League Leadership At Stake In Ashville Game Sunday.

The Circleville Eagles and the leading Francis Dry Cleaners ... meet in what will be one of ... most important games of the ... on Sunday afternoon at Community Park in Ashville.

Announcement has been made that the game will game be played ... Ashville this Sunday due to the ... but the ... grounds will not be cleared up and in condition following the big carnival which the Eagles are holding there this week.

The game Sunday with the top notch Cleaners will doubtless be one of the hardest fought games of the season. The Dry Cleaners are fighting hard to remain in first place while the local team is fighting just as hard to pull them down on an even basis with them in the league race. Both teams will be out there doing their very best to cop the verdict and local fans who were more than pleased with the results of the game last Sunday will see another one this week which promises to be even a better one than the game played with the Mt. Sterling aggregation.

Both teams must win in order to gain the advantage needed to keep them in the pennant race. Both teams are already claiming the victory. The Cleaners say they defeated the Eagles before and they can do it again. Manager Francis states that his boys are in splendid shape and eager to meet the Birds. He boasts that his men will knock Jock Boyd the Circleville pitching ace, out of the box in less than five innings.

Of course the local manager is taking the boasts made by Mr. Francis as a joke and local fans who saw the game here before with the Cleaners feel the same way about it. Harvey Miller, a former Circlevilie boy who is playing with the Birds and hitting the ball at a ferocious clip, made the remark that Bill Purtell, the Francis pitcher would have to have something more than just spit on the ball this time.

THE RULE IS!

By GEORGE SARGENT
Golf Professional

The Situation:

What rule applies as to priority on a golf course? What standing has a single player on a course?

The Rule Is:

Pairs, threesomes, and foursomes have precedence over any other kind of match and are entitled to pass them. A single player has no standing and must give way to any other kind of match. If there is more than one clear hole ahead of any match you may play through on request. A match playing a whole round may pass a match playing a shorter round.

First Movies

It is said that the first motion pictures were received in New York with very little enthusiasm. They were presented in 1896 at Koster and Bial's Music hall on Sixth avenue. The audience was apparently under the impression that there were a trick advance of some kind in shadowgraphy, which was then very popular. The first movie audience was even more critical than a modern first night crowd and did not even deign to applaud.

REAL BATTLES ON PARK CARD

Kid Wagner and Shifty Seymour Promise Action For Fans Tonight.

When Eddie "Kid" Wagner and Shifty Seymour tie up Thursday night at Scippo Park only one word can describe it and that's "action." The two boys hail from Chillicothe and both have a reputation of making things lively for the other fellow in the ring. So when these two start mixing it looks as though somebody will have to drop.

The Mexican Kid, of Cincinnati and Kid Brown, of Chillicothe, will again meet in the evening's final. Fans will remember last week these two boys fought a real battle which ended in a draw. But it seems as neither was satisfied because both are coming back with the intention of putting each away. When they are in that mood it means one a double knock-out.

Lundy Ferguson, of Circleville, will meet Joey Craig, of Yellowbud in one of the preliminary battle. Both of these boys are good clean sportsmen and both promise the fight public a real scrap. In the opener of the evening Battling Nash of Chillicothe will meet Pat Hartley of Circleville.

There are 12 rounds of clean action on Thursday night's card and the fighters are eager to go. A large crowd is expected so be there early in order to see every blow of these fist bouts which will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

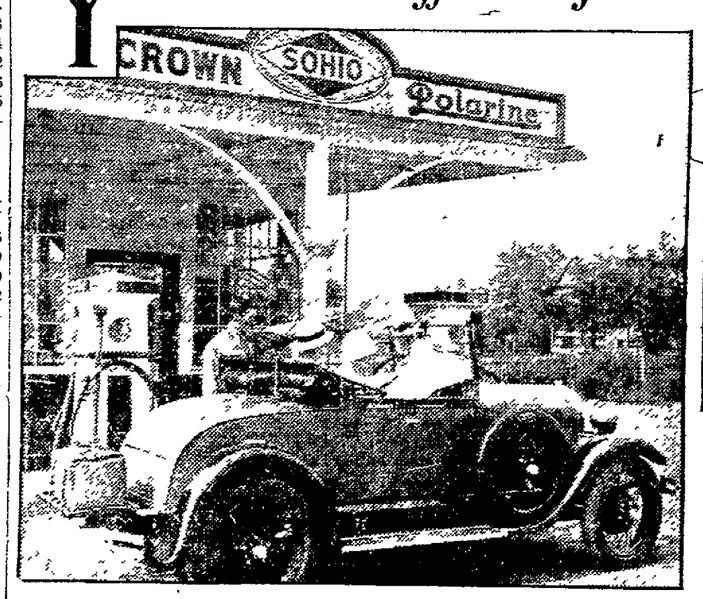
You need this "different" fuel in hot weather



SOHIO gives smooth, even power no matter how fast or far you drive...

WITH Summer Sohio in your gasoline tank you'll find your car operating smoother and cooler. You'll find less need for shifting gears on hills. Carbon knocks will disappear. Watch your mileage increase.

The reason is simple. Sohio is specially refined to meet warm weather driving conditions. In Summer the danger of overheating is always present; knocking motors labor on hills and cause excessive vibration, needless loss of power and unnecessary wear and tear on the engine. Motors become lazy and sluggish and fail to develop their full efficiency.

Put Summer Sohio Ethyl in your tank and forget summer driving troubles. You'll find Summer Sohio giving your motor a new snap and added power. You'll find your operation cooler and quieter, too, because Summer Sohio does these things:

1. Prevents pre-ignition
2. Stops carbon knocks
3. Gives smooth, even power
4. Makes frequent gear shifting unnecessary

Drive up to one of the 700 Red-White-and-Blue Standard service stations that dot the State of Ohio. Or stop at one of the thousands of Sohio dealers' pumps. Ask for Sohio. Try it out—and join the thousands who are now convinced that there IS a difference in gasoline.

Can't Assign Credit for Invention of Compass

The origin of the mariner's compass is obscure. By some students the instrument was said to have been introduced into Europe from the East. Others say it was a western invention. It was certainly known to European navigators as early as the Twelfth century. Guyot de Provins, whose satirical "Bible" is supposed to have been completed in 1205, described "a contrivance" of sailors which never deceived them.

"They have an ugly brown stone which attracts iron," he wrote. "They mark the exact quarter to which the needle points, which they have rubbed on this stone, and afterward stuck into a straw. They merely put it in the water, in which the straw causes it to swim; then the point turns directly toward the (North) star, with such certainty that it will never fail."

Guyot wrote about the compass as if it were a new thing, but other writers reveal that the English in the Twelfth century had already mounted the needle on a pivot and so done away with the straw and water.—New York Times.

Inventor of Linoleum

Linoleum, which is a process of manufacturing a floor covering from oxidized linseed oil and powered cork, was introduced into England in 1860 by a man named Walton. We do not find it was on the market in the United States during the Civil war.—Washington Star.

MENTAL EXPLOSIONS UNDERMINE SYSTEM

t's So Easy to "Flare Up" Under the Physical Stress of Stifling Heat, Says Authority, Urging All to Practice Calmness and Self-Restraint.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I had lunch with Senator Swanson, of Virginia. The Senator is very much of a philosopher. His active mind runs the whole gamut of life. It is surprising how many things he has given serious thought.

DR. COPELAND.

A good many times the Senator has mentioned these articles. The other day he asked if I wouldn't like a few subjects for discussion.

I laughingly said I would be glad to have them, saying: "I can write on any subject if I have the subject."

That was said in jest, of course, but for one who writes an article every day, day after day and year after year, it does help a lot to have somebody suggest a subject he would like to have discussed. That is one reason I prize the thousands of letters written me by the readers of this column. I get first-hand information of their desires and needs.

Anyhow, Senator Swanson said: "Let us have a series of articles relating to the Summer season—Summer fruits, foods and drinks, how to avoid Summer diarrhoea, typhoid and malaria, and the importance of calmness of mind."

Then the Senator suggested that many a man is upset, thrown off his digestion and made half sick, because of a nagging wife. "But," I broke in, "what about the wife who is pestered and lectured and beset by a disagreeable husband?"

We agreed that both sexes have equal occasion to practice forbearance and kindliness of conduct. There can be no doubt, I am sure, that happy marital relations have much to do with good temper, good digestion and good health.

Hot weather is indeed, trying to soul and body. Tired, sweaty, suffering bodies set the nerves on edge. It is easy to have a mental explosion, a regular "brain storm," under the physical stress of stifling heat.

The most difficult time in a man's life is from 4 to 7 o'clock in the afternoon. That period is equally trying for the housewife who is preparing dinner in a hot kitchen.

There must be a bridle on the tongue and severe self-restraint during these hours or trouble will begin. A disturbance originating then may be carried on through the evening, break the sleep as it continues, and make the morning after a sort of hell on earth.

To have many such explosions will undermine the health. No one can question that continued unhappiness is fatal to vigor and good health.

Thank you, Senator, for your suggestions. I shall accept all of them.

M. L. Will vinegar and water help to lose weight?

2—What should a girl weigh who is seventeen years old and five feet two inches tall?

3—Do you advise the use of ——?

4—How can I reduce?

A—No, and it will probably "thin" your blood if taken in an excessive amount.

2—For her age and height she should weigh about 115 pounds.

3—No.

4—Weight reduction is purely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. Exercise is, of course, essential. For particulars send a self addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

M. T. Q.—What can I do to overcome "gases"? I am usually troubled with constipation.

2—What are the symptoms of cancer?

A.—If you correct constipation you will probably not be bothered with "gases." Try to eat simple foods avoiding the ones unduly rich in fats and starches. Eat plenty of fresh vegetables and fruits. For other information send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—The symptoms depend upon the location of the cancer.

Deadly White Ants

The United States exports iron telegraph poles to South Africa. Wood is abundant and cheaper, but it would be quickly destroyed by the powerful jaws of the terrible white ants. In Ceylon black "army" ants marched on the war path. A scientist counting them, found 300,000 soldiers in one army, marching in companies about twenty abreast, with officers running up and down the line keeping order. Let a horse or man break a leg and fall in the path of army ants, and in a few hours only a skeleton is left, according to Prof. J. Arthur Thomson in "Outline of Science."

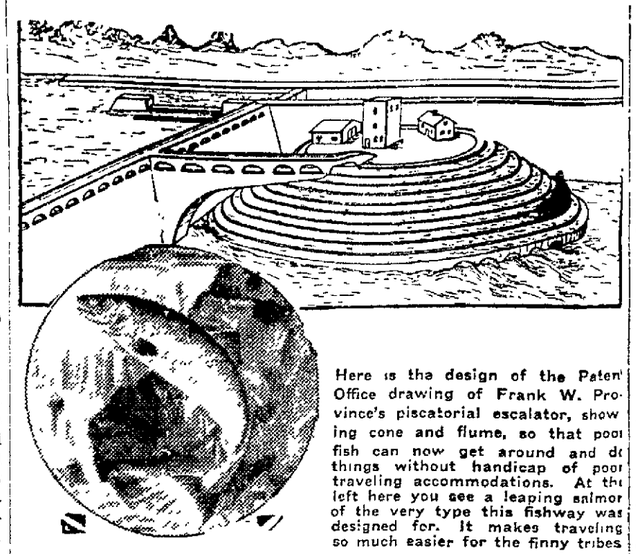
Science Invents Travel Accommodations for Fish



Here is the design of the Patent Office drawing of Frank W. Province's piscatorial escalator, showing cone and flume, so that poor fish can now get around and do things without handicap of poor traveling accommodations. At the left here you see a leaping salmon of the very type this fishway was designed for. It makes traveling so much easier for the finny tribes.

Staircase to Get Over Dams, Newest Convenience

HOW can you expect a poor fish to get upstream to its spawning grounds, or a baby fish to go downstream from its birthplace when it has to climb over a man-made dam?

As a matter of fact, that has been one of the most trying problems of the fish world for a long time Now man, who built the dams, has had a stroke of conscience and invented a stairway whereby the plodding fishes can get to their destination.

Invented by Frank W. Province of Camas, Washington, the new fishway has a supporting base in the shape of a cone, around which winds a flume with a gradual rise from the lowest to the uppermost level. The flume has a sloping floor, thus insuring a measure of safety for the young and defenseless fishes, for in the shallow water they can escape the large, carnivorous fishes coming down at the same time.

In fact, every possible provision has been made for the comfort of the finny travelers. The winding flume is built so that each turn overhangs a lower turn—thus affording shade—and there are enlargements at intervals wherein the fish may rest.

But perhaps the most interesting feature in connection with the "fish escalator" recently patented is the possibility of making the fishway structure hollow and so built as to allow for the housing of turbines, so that the water power of the "stair" may be converted into electricity.

Mom, Pop Must Approve Wedding Plans of Minors

According to a new interpretation of the law, it is necessary for both the mother and the father of a minor to appear in the Probate Court, in order to secure a marriage license. Up to this time the consent of parents meant of one or the other, but not necessarily both.

This new translation of the law may possibly change the plans of many young romancers, who on their way to procure a license snatch up papa or mama to offer his or her consent to the union. The difficulties may develop from having to pick up both mama and papa, who haven't agreed on anything for so many years that it will be impossible for them to both say "yes" at the same time

From another angle, the consent of both parents may prevent marriages that on the other hand would have been accomplished hastily and with poor judgment. The trite phrase "mother knows best" will have no weight if father decides to step in and says it is not to be.

What Makes Our Friends

It is not seeing one's friends having them within reach, hearing of and from them, which makes them ours. Many a one has all that, and yet has nothing. How's this for a hot-weather dinner?

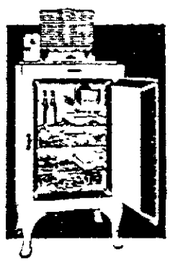
One of these evenings, when you're exhausted from the heat and nothing tastes good, how would you like to sit down to a dinner like this? An ice-cold fruit cup, jellied chicken and ham, a salad of crisp lettuce with a stuffed tomato in aspic. And, for dessert, a strawberry sundae.

Tempting, isn't it? And so pleasantly easy to prepare. Then your General Electric Refrigerator will do the rest.

Fifty degrees is accepted by scientists as the "danger point" in the preservation of food. When the temperature rises even a degree or two above that, bacteria multiply, foods become unsafe to eat—a menace to health. In the General Electric Refrigerator the temperature is automatically kept several degrees below fifty—always.

Now, in addition to all its previously proved superiorities, General Electric offers an all-steel warp-proof cabinet. There are now more than 300,000 General Electric Refrigerator users and not one has spent a single dollar for repairs.



Prices on the new all-steel models start at $215 at the factory. See them at our display rooms.

Tune in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday evening 8 to 9 Eastern Standard Time over the N. B. C. network of 42 stations.

What Makes Our Friends

It is not seeing one's friends having them within reach, hearing of and from them, which makes them ours. Many a one has all that, and yet has nothing. It is the believing in them, the depending on them, assured that they are good and true to the core, and therefore could not but be good and true toward everybody else, ourselves included.—Dinah Mulock Craik.

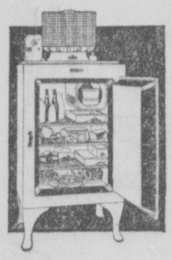
How's this for a hot-weather dinner?

One of these evenings, when you're exhausted from the heat and nothing tastes good, how would you like to sit down to a dinner like this? An ice-cold fruit cup, jellied chicken and ham, a salad of crisp lettuce with a stuffed tomato in aspic. And, for dessert, a strawberry sundae.

Tempting, isn't it? And so pleasantly easy to prepare. Then your General Electric Refrigerator will do the rest.

Fifty degrees is accepted by scientists as the "danger point" in the preservation of food. When the temperature rises even a degree or two above that, bacteria multiply, foods become unsafe to eat—a menace to health. In the General Electric Refrigerator the temperature is automatically kept several degrees below fifty—always.



Now, in addition to all its previously proved superiorities, General Electric offers an all-steel warp-proof cabinet! There are now more than 300,000 General Electric Refrigerator users and not one has spent a single dollar for repairs.

Prices on the new all-steel models start at $215 at the factory. See them at our display rooms.

Tune in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday evening 8 to 9 Eastern Standard Time over the N. B. C. network of 42 stations.
